

From: Sandra G. Owen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/27/02 1:48pm
Subject: AOL

It is about time that the settlement previous to AOL is finalized.

AOL is seeking to line its own pockets by adverse action;
as stated by one of the Attorneys General who oppose settlement - paraphrased "we will sue and sue because we do not have to pay fees, Microsoft has to do that." AOL itself is wanting something for nothing; riding shirttails to get business without innovation of its own.

I can only hope that the Tunney Review stops all attempts, underhanded ones at that, as the public has had enough of this bickering and most importantly jealously by those not capable of doing there own research and development.

Sandy Owen